

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The field of emergency communications is by its very nature, stressful. From the frantic call of a parent who just found their baby not breathing, to a motorist injured in an accident on a strange roadway, telecommunicators are the life link to thousands of people each day. These dedicated people must be the calm, reassuring voice that ensures that help is but that call away. All too often however, intense emotions and other damaging stress reactions are caused by visual images brought on by events never seen and the vicarious traumatization that comes with helping others. These stress reactions can, and often do, take a toll on even the most seasoned telecommunicator.

At the completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Define stress
- Recognize the causes and risk factors of stress
- Recognize the signs and symptoms of stress
- Recognize the professional cost of stress
- Understand how Telecommunicators are impacted by stress
- Better manage their own stress and that of those around them
- Properly define CISM
- Understand the principles of CISM
- Identify resources available to assist with managing stress
