APCO DATA COLLECTION AUTHORIZATION

The new European Union (EU) General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), state and federal regulations are compelling organizations across the globe to modify their data processing requirements. A key change is that individuals must provide consent to the collection of their personal information and they have expanded rights as individuals to control the use and storage of their personal data.

In order to process your request or transaction, APCO International will be asking to collect some personal information from you which may include your name, email, phone number, organizational affiliation and postal address. APCO uses the personal data it collects to provide you with the service that you have requested, or to respond to an inquiry that you have made.

More generally, APCO uses the personal data it retains on individuals to help them compile their professional record with APCO so as to demonstrate engagement in the profession, support their career advancement and validate their association service, including eligibility for honors such as Senior and Life member. APCO may also use such personal data to determine user interests, needs and preferences, conduct research and analysis, manage and maintain the sites and our services, comply with our legal obligations, resolve disputes, protect our assets and enforce our agreements.

APCO is committed to keeping your data safe. As part of our business operations we maintain appropriate security measures to prevent security breaches and unauthorized disclosure of client data. Any financial data requested and transmitted through our sites are transmitted using SSL (Secure Socket Layer) encryption.

Like many websites, our sites set and use cookies to enhance your user experience, such as retaining your personal settings. By using our sites, you consent to the use of cookies and log files.

Go to www.apcointl.org/privacy-policy-data-usage for more details on APCO's privacy, data retention, disclosure, security and cookies policies.

Signing the front of this application hereby acknowledges that you have read and understand APCO's policies as they relate to your data, and that you understand your right to withdraw consent. It is important to note that you are prohibited from completing this form on behalf of anyone else.
